

深 圳 市 交 通 局

To Whom It May Concern:

Building on the success of the first Shenzhen Port Directory which was published in September 2008. We are moving forward with our partner, Seaports Publications Group, to again deliver an exceptional print and online port directory that will promote Shenzhen to the international marketplace.

The Shenzhen Port and related maritime industries play a significant role in the economic development of the region. Although the global market has had a slight financial downturn, Shenzhen terminals continue to expand, and are poised for growth. The 2009-2010 Shenzhen Port Directory will give you a clear understanding of the variety of companies and activities that constitute the Shenzhen Port and its thriving maritime community. It is an industry resource guide focusing on introducing the ports and logistic industry of Shenzhen, with a targeted distribution of cargo-flow decision makers and product/service providers. This high-profile directory will debut at the Trans-Pacific Maritime Conference in Shenzhen this September 2009.

Seaports Publications Group has a proven track record of publishing custom port directories and online information. Publisher Ray Venturino will be the project leader, working closely the Shenzhen Port and Terminals, as well as his team of writers, designers, advertising sales team and others to ensure the quality of this strategic publication.

Over 3,000 copies of the directory will have a targeted local and international distribution to port-related companies, tenants, importers and exporters, ocean and air cargo carriers, terminal operators, rail and trucking companies, port business prospects, universities and trade schools, to name a few. The directory will also be an integral part of all port industry events and briefings.

Over the coming weeks and months. Mr. Venturino and his team will be formulating the contents of this directory. If you would like your organization listed in one business category free of charge, please let Mr. Venturino know. He can be reached at rventurino@seaportsinfo.com.

The Shenzhen Port Authority, the Bureau of Communications of Shenzhen Municipality (Ports Administration of Shenzhen Municipality) entrusts Seaports Publications Group to publish The 2009-2010 Shenzhen Port Directory, and hope you will do the same.

Yours sincerely,

Ma Yongzhi
